

I stongly support the Indiana no call list and the protection provided. Please do not make any alterations in the same. On average, before the no call list was instituted, we received 5 to 7 calls per day from unsolisited vendors who were rude and interupted our household. Now these calls are few. If telemarketers want to use my telephone line for their business, they should have to share the my expense in maintaining the same and pay me for the time that they take away from my family.
